When submitting a doctoral thesis, a statement of co-authorship written by the candidate's main supervisor must be enclosed, describing the candidate's work process and contribution to the individual parts of the thesis (articles and manuscripts). Please also include information about collaboration with other institutions, especially extensive collaboration that has resulted in an unusually high number of co-authors, as well as other relevant information. The Faculty of Medicine follows the Vancouver rules. Please write the statement of co-authorship in English.
